INTRODUCING OUR NEW DIRECTOR

Dr. Rick Williams is married to his wife, Heather, of 21 years, and together they have three children. He and his family enjoy going on vacation and visiting the Buffalo River.

Dr. Williams started his educational journey after working for a Fortune 500 company when he felt a calling to follow in his late mom's footsteps as an educator and life coach. He began his 18-and-a-half educational career in his hometown of West Monroe, Louisiana, where he taught science and coached football, baseball, and softball. Since his family loved the outdoors in Northwest Arkansas, they decided to move to the area in 2017. Here, he worked for the Fayetteville School District as a science teacher.

After finishing his doctoral journey, Dr. Williams became the principal at Marshall High School. He implemented professional learning communities with Solution Tree experts. He also worked with the stakeholders to redefine the School of Innovation program and introduce personalized learning opportunities for students, including community outreach programs and incentives to motivate students academically.

Dr. Williams is an advocate for meeting students' social-emotional needs, evident in "Capturing Kids' Hearts" leadership training strategies. His passion is to create a positive school culture and climate by working with families and community leaders to motivate students academically and socially for lifelong success. Dr. Williams is excited for the opportunity to fulfill his passion at Premier High School.
